Who can spot where the liquid inject was switched off?

Will be some very interesting harvest results again this year, as the liquid Inject adopters now also over in the Eastern States, are really noticing the difference of the additional Nutrition down the tube left from seeding, especially in a wet season like this year. The additional complexed chelation of Reactive Carbon, Traces and more, is showing again so far that this season will be another good year for most under the belt. Regardless of the moisture levels, if the crop is still there and not taken out with some of the wild weather, floods and disease pressure, it looks to be on track for another great year! Location in SA.

The feedback from many growers this year is that they can really notice where the extra nutritional dollars have been spent, including foliar applications, where the same cant be said about the repetitive fungicide applications this year. Some crops of beans for example reported being sprayed up to 4-5 times with fungicides, but to no avail...another example and yet another reminder to many this year again, to focus more on nutrition. Location VIC.

Benefits of Nutrition to Potato Crop

The potato crop is a Royal Blue and the neighbours want to know, how that crop seeded at the same time can be 3 weeks plus in advance of theirs? A large number of potatoes already filling out evidently.

It's called a nutrition based Carbon System to manipulate the soils ability to be more effectively cycled. All nutritional required elements are needed to translocate both via the soil, petiole and the leaf tissue.
